Early March 2016

Members of the Class of 2000... happy (almost) Spring!

Wabash is definitely on the radar of government officials,

They're focusing on international recruiting and increasing the frequency of travel is towards the top of the priority list. The College has previously only had a single admissions trip outside of the United States, which was to India. And admissions was already on a tear before this initiative started... I think the goal is to have 1000+ students (up from the ~800 when we were undergrads), which will significantly improve finances at the College since most expenses will stay relatively flat. As of a month ago, they generated 600 admits and

Yours in Wabash,
Pat, Jeff, Tim, and Trevor
